DOG, DUCKS RESCUED

Fire departments rescue animals in Crestwood, La Grange

BY JASON STAMM
SPORTS EDITOR, THE OLDHAM ERA

Two Ford Explorers and a red F-250 pickup truck plodded through mud, manure and other muck on a rescue mission Friday afternoon.

A crew from South Oldham Fire & Rescue rescued a dog trapped in a 4-foot sink hole.

On Monday, the La Grange Fire & Rescue and Oldham County Animal Control made a rescue of their own, when crew members pulled eight baby ducklings from a storm drain in La Grange.

South Oldham Assistant Chief Kevin Parker, a member of the team that rescued the dog, said he responded to a trapped dog in a hole near Halls Hill Road in Crestwood.

After driving through a few cow pastures to reach the hole, the firefighters also discovered a decomposed cow in it.

The dog, named Blue, had been reported missing March

The day before the University of Kentucky met the University of Louisville in the NCAA men's basketball Final Four tournament Saturday, employees from the Oldham County Sheriff's Office, Oldham County Clerk's Office, Oldham County Jail, Oldham County Judge-Executive's Office, Oldham County District and Circuit Courts and neighboring businesses hosted a 10-minute pep rally in La Grange at Ky. 53 and Ky. 146. Deputy Judge-Executive John Black carried a boombox and blared UK's fight song as drivers honked their horns to support UK or U of L. "I might get fired for this," he joked. "But I like to have fun during lunch." Top center, employees from The BANK – Oldham County raised $1,400 for the Relay for Life by asking staff members and customers to support their favorite team with a donation. Emergency task force hires consultant

After discussing the status of Oldham County EMS for more than an hour, members of the Fire and EMS task force decided to drop the organization from its mission statement.

Judge-Executive David Voegelé spoke to the task force at its March 28 meeting and said the OCEMS financial situation necessitated immediate action.

The task force had only focused on the fire departments since its first meeting in August but planned to incorporate OCEMS after collecting fire department data.

Tom Davison, task force chair, told the group he hopes the task force's recommendations about the county's fire protection services can be finished in the next few months.

There would likely be downtime after that before OCEMS could be evaluated, he said, with the possible changes com-

Little Big Horse Trails offers relaxing ride

Derby season is approaching faster than a horse down the backstretch, and that means lots of stories about sleek, glistening Thoroughbreds.

This is not one of those stories, because this is not that kind of riding.

St. Francis students will track teacher in Boston Marathon

BY TRACY HARRIS
STAFF WRITER, THE OLDHAM ERA

A St. Francis Goshen class is learning about history, geography and sports all at once as a second-grade teacher prepares to run the Boston Marathon.

Madelyn Blue will be competing in the prestigious race for the third time April 16.

Athletes must run qualifying times to enter the Boston Marathon or fundraise for a charity position.

Blue is integrating the event into her classroom at St. Francis, including teaching about the course's many famous landmarks.

Blue and her students use a SmartBoard — an electronic whiteboard — to spot different landmarks along the course map.

They help Blue find the Newton

Hills section of the course, a series of four climbs famous for Heartbreak Hill, which challenges many runners at mile 21.

The marathon course goes from Hopkington, Mass., a city west of Boston, and through five other cities before ending in downtown Boston.

Blue's students find the different spots where her time will be posted live on the internet — roughly every three miles — through an online athlete tracking system.

The class also calculated what her time needs to be at the halfway point to hit her goal of 3:30.

Other math-related tasks have included tracking Blue's mileage in training and the course's elevation chart.

Students also learned about Patriot's Day, the Massachusetts holiday on which the race is held.

Because of the Monday date, Blue will be out of the classroom Monday and Tuesday.

Even an acrostic poem using the word "marathon" challenged students to come up with different words that fit the theme.

They've also talked about the elite runners who will be competing for the title — Blue said her students have asked several times if she'll win or at least earn second place.

Instead, students learned about past champions and the push in recent years by American runners to place high in the race. Last year, the second place men's and women's finishers were both Americans.

Blue won't be first, although she hopes to better her own best time at this year's event with pacing help

Parker said the team tried to lift the dog with a harness with no luck.

After two hours, the crew successfully pulled the mud-covered dog to safety after digging him out using small shovels and their hands.

"We moved as swiftly as we could but be safe at the same time," he said. "It wasn't gonna survive if it stayed there much longer."

The dog's owners took it to Metropolitan Veterinary in Louisville where it remains in stable condition, according to the vet.

On Monday, the LFRD rescued eight ducklings that were trapped in a 5-foot storm drain next to Waffle House in La Grange.

The team used a crowbar to lift the drain cover and pull the birds out one by one. The ducks were later released at Wilborn Park in La Grange.

Former Oldham teacher may plea to sex charges

La Grange woman who taught in Shelby County school has 'negotiating to do'

BY LISA KING
LANDMARK NEWS SERVICE

A former high school teacher arrested last summer for sexually abusing students was expected to enter a plea this week in Shelby circuit court, but her hearing has been postponed at the request of her attorney.

Hirschert

Shannon Hirschert, a special needs teacher at Martha Lane Collins High School in 2010-11, was arrested in August 2011 and charged with six counts of first-degree sexual abuse and two counts of distributing obscene matter to minors dating back to fall 2010. Hirschert's attorney, Brian Butler, told The Sentinel-News on Friday that Hirschert would not enter a plea because she is not quite ready to do that — at least not yet. "At this point, we still have negotiating to do, and there are still some things to be worked out," he said. Hirschert, 42, is scheduled to appear in court May 7. Butler said he is uncertain whether Hirschert will enter a plea at that time, but it is a possibility. Shelby County Sheriff's Det. Jason Rice said when Hirschert was arrested investigators believed the sexual conduct was consensual, but it fell under KRS statute 510.110, the charge of sexual abuse first degree when a person is in a position of authority or special trust, which includes teachers. Each of the six charges is said to have occurred in different locations in Shelby County, including private property and one incident inside Collins High School. The charges of distribution of obscene matter to minors are photos sent between mobile phones, Rice said. The sex abuse charges carry penalties of 1 to 5 years in prison and the distribution of obscene matter to minors has a penalty of up to 1 year in jail. Hirschert joined the staff at Collins High in 2010 after teaching in Oldham County. She was not involved with any extra-curricular activities or clubs, and the students allegedly involved were not enrolled in her class, although at least one may have been working as a classroom aid. The events leading up to her arrest began when a teacher overheard students at Collins High School talking about Hirschert and the allegations. School officials put Hirschert on administrative leave when she was arrested Aug. 3, 2011, pending the outcome of the investigation. Shelby County Public Schools Superintendent James Neihof said Hirschert voluntarily resigned two days later. Email us about this story at: news@oldhamera.com.

PEER TUTORS BOOST GRADES

BY TRACY HARRIS
STAFF WRITER, THE OLDHAM ERA

For students still learning English, homework can be a daunting task. But a group of Oldham County High School students are helping younger students get ahead. The Sonadores Club — roughly translated as "The Dreamers" — formed at OCHS three years ago. The club has about 25 members and many provide tutoring and homework assistance twice a week at the La Grange Community Center. Help is available in all subjects for students in kindergarten through fifth grades, and English Language Learners Director Brooke Young said the younger students love the sessions. "They're excited to be tutored by others like them," she said. The younger students look up to their tutors, including club president Junior Rua and vice president Alex Quijada.

Rua is very involved in the community, Young said, and Quijada plays soccer for OCHS. "We're focusing on the community and on being positive role models," Young said. The students received certificates of appreciation from La Grange City Council Monday. "It's exciting when you can shake the hand of someone who helps the community," said Mayor Bill Lammlein. Lammlein said he first learned about the club a few months ago at an English Language Learners program at La Grange Elementary. "It opened my eyes to what goes in the city," he said. The club serves as a bridge between the school system and the Latino community, Young said, and its members often serve as translators. The club has also met with local politicians including Rep. John Yarmuth about the from Prospect resident Mark Schoenegge, one of her training partners. Blue, 30, qualified for this year's race when she ran the Boston Marathon last year. She finished the race in 3:34:50, more than five minutes under the qualifying time for her age group, and set a new personal best. Almost 24,000 people finished the 2011 race. However, race standards will be tougher for the 2013 event — about five minutes faster for most age groups. Women 34 and younger must run a 3:35 at a sanctioned marathon to qualify; men in the same age group must run a 3:05. After the Boston Marathon, Blue will continue training for several triathlon events she plans to complete this year. In June, she'll travel to California for the Escape from Alcatraz triathlon, where competitors swim 1.5 miles from Alcatraz Island to shore. Blue will then tackle an 18-mile bike race and an 8-mile run. While the overall distance isn't a worry, the rough, chilly ocean swim has Blue nervous. Blue will also complete several other triathlons this summer as training for Ford Ironman Louisville. The 140.6-mile event includes Oldham County in its course and takes place Aug. 26. It will be Blue's fourth Ironman-distance event. Blue enjoys the opportunity to share her training and racing experiences with her students, who are excited to see how Blue does in the Boston Marathon — one student even wore a Boston shirt to show support last week.

although most who come to Little Big Horse Trails are inexperienced. And that's perfectly fine. Morgan and Williams enjoy getting people out on horseback, especially those who have never been before. Williams recalls a number of first-time riders who overcame their fears, from grown men to young girls. A 6-year-old girl once sobbed through the first part of the ride before telling Williams she trusted her horse would take care of her. A little while later — a typical Little Big Horse ride takes an hour — the girl piped up. "This is kind of relaxing," Williams recalls the girl saying. Those hour-rides through Morgan's 500 acres are a respite from the hustle and bustle of everyday life. The trails are worn, the brooks babbling, the birds singing. Morgan keeps a stable of 25 horses, along with a few chickens and a Chow named Sasha. On arriving, Sasha will be the first to greet you, so it's worth knowing her name. Morgan and Williams organize rides of all sizes as long as they have enough horses. For some larger corporate events, they've done rides in shifts. Corporate groups come out and spend the day at Little Big Horse Trails, as do sports teams. Morgan remembers a college volleyball team that came to ride as a team building event. "Their legs were so long the stirrups wouldn't go down far enough," he said with a laugh. All riders receive one-on-one instruction on mounting their ride and on how to turn and stop their horse. There is no rush — riders are given time to get comfortable and stops are made as necessary during the ride. After the ride, check out the former tobacco barn Morgan converted into a lodge. Morgan did all the wood and stone work himself. He also carved much of the furniture, including a bed complete with hat and rifle carvings. Williams said the barn's outhouse is a visitor favorite, too. It has plumbing, so it's barely an outhouse, but users do have to pull a bride to flush. Rides are offered Monday through Saturday by reservation, making Little Big Horse Trails a great spring break stop. The farm is located on Ky. 524, about 10 minutes outside La Grange. ing to OCEMS management. "I think probably the practical thing at this point is to amend your mission statement and just drop that out," Voegele told the task force. Voegele told members that he still thinks having six different fire departments is impractical. In November, Voegele invited consultant Bill Kramer to attend task force meetings on a pro bono basis to see if his company's services might be helpful. Kramer and Associates is a fire service consulting firm that helps with consolidations, fire chief selections, service analysis, fire protection needs for new subdivisions and other issues. Kramer has attended the task force's last four meetings and presented a proposed contract at the February meeting. According to the contract, Kramer's company would take data compiled by the task force and use it to create an official report. Kramer would include national comparisons, best practices and other information his company has collected elsewhere in the country. "The report will represent the official findings of the task force, including detailed analysis generated by the consultant and accepted by the task force as relevant," according to the proposal. Kramer said he expects to have a first draft ready for the task force's review next month. Members will then give input and have the opportunity to write minority opinions for inclusion. The contract is for $9,500, which Voegele told task force members he would ask fiscal court to fund. Task force members voted unanimously to approve the contract. Voegele sent magistrates an email about the contract ahead of Tuesday's fiscal court meeting, as he was out of town and absent from the meeting. In the email he said task force members are very enthusiastic about the partnership with Kramer. Voegele said funding could come from unspent money budgeted for consultant's fees. District 8 Magistrate Michael Logsdon said the public should know fiscal court cannot tell the fire departments what changes to make and that the report is merely a fact-finding endeavor. Magistrates voted 7-1 to accept the contract. Logsdon voted against it. The next task force meeting is 6 p.m. April 24 in the fiscal court building. Email us about this story at: tharris@oldhamera.com.

KEEP IT TO YOURSELF

Perhaps the hardest thing for anyone to do is to learn when to speak and when to remain silent. How many times do we blurt out a comment and regret it as soon as it is out of our mouths?

You can dig your own grave with your tongue or you can make great advances with it. It all depends on what you say, and to whom and when you say it.

My mom used to always tell me to “keep it to myself.” My dad would say: “A passenger should not criticize the driver.”

It is hard to keep it to ourselves, mostly because we have to know what our own business is to be minded, and because we have to let others mind theirs.

The trouble with smart people is that they think they know best for everyone else. Even though they might not have done the actual job they are criticizing, they know they could do it better, given the chance. What’s even worse, stupid people who think they are smart behave the same way.

How do you know if the critic is bright or not? Keep quiet and listen. Sooner or later, the lunkheads will reveal themselves.

Therein lies the crux of the matter. If you really do know how to do something better than the incumbent, you have various options on how to demonstrate it.

You could become that person’s man Friday and inveigle yourself gradually into the position. You could issue a challenge and go hand to hand to upset the incumbent (this is the Cosa Nostra way).

You could muster allies and overwhelm the misguided person with the forces of reason and numbers. You could wait for the person to fail and then step into the breach after demonstrating your superior abilities.

It’s so easy to fall into the trap of Mother nature is calling and calling

Through extensive research and data gathering, I have concluded that motherhood is a leading cause of irregularity and ruptured bladders. Ask mothers at any Mothers of Preschoolers program, play group, or PTA meeting, “What is the one thing you miss most from your pre-mommy days?”

Invariably someone will reply, “My time in the bathroom.”

Every head in the room nods in agreement and eyes fill with a soulful longing of days gone by.

Days when all the people in their life respected their need to make regular trips to the bathroom, close the door and allow the gentle urges of nature to be taken care of without interruption or a frantic rush toward fulfillment.

But motherhood changes all of that. Once you become a mom, the gentle urges of nature must often be ignored until they become angry, screaming calls of the wild that can no longer be denied.

guest columnist

It is a scientific fact that the human body cycles every 20 minutes. If you are hungry, wait 20 minutes and the feeling will subside for 20 more.

If you are tired at 10 p.m., but can keep yourself awake until 10:20, you will catch a second wind. If you ignore nature’s call for 20 minutes, the urge will temporarily pass.

It is a handy piece of information to have when traveling with children, but not so handy for the mom who, due to the many demands of her life, has suffered through the 20-minute cycle at least 17 times and knows it will be another 12 before daddy gets home.

Such was my situation one morning a few years ago.

Mother Nature was calling, repeatedly.

She had whispered gently at first and then slightly louder, gradually raising her voice to a frantic, feverish pitch that I could not ignore.

The downstairs bathroom was in use, so I had to quickly devise a plan that would allow me to get upstairs.

I settled my toddler into her comfy chair with a cup of juice and a Barney video, made a bottle of formula, grabbed the hungry baby and headed toward the steps.

Toddler suddenly noticed my attempted get away and ran after me calling, “I upstairs too!”

So, with a fussing 1-year-old on my hip, I tread at an excruciatingly slow pace behind a 2-year-old who took her time navigating the knee-high stairs.

When we finally arrived I quickly set up the playpen within view of the bathroom door, propped the now screaming baby up with his bottle, and turned to find that my toddler had disappeared.

I ran down the hallway, frantically searching until I located her in her teen sister’s room, happily applying make-up.

I wrestled the mascara and eyeliner out of her tightly clenched fists, and found myself begging, “Please, just come with mommy so I can potty!”

I wiped her face in order to prevent lipstick from being smeared on my white comforter, and settled her on the bed to watch the upstairs Barney video I keep on hand for emergency situations.

I helped the baby find the bottle he had dropped and rushed to the bathroom, unzipping my jeans along the way and discovering that the breathing techniques I learned in Lamaze were also handy in this situation.

The goal was in sight when I noticed that the man in my life had chosen not to lift the seat that morning. Sometimes I think he hates me.

Why else would he pee on something he knows will eventually touch my bare skin?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Drivers, if you have the right-of-way, use it

To the editor:

I have lived in Oldham County for 11 years and I often see a driving habit that seems peculiar to this county.

That is; politeness! Although politeness is always to be encouraged, there are times when it is not necessary and can often increase the chances of a road traffic accident particularly when there are poor road conditions like rain and ice.

A particular example is when drivers, with a clear right of way and a clear roadway, stop unexpectedly to yield that right of way to other drivers at T-junctions.

I understand that their intention is to be polite, but I have often seen so many near accidents as a result of the habit that I feel it important to ask my fellow drivers to refrain from the practice of directing other traffic from inside their car.

It’s worth pointing out that it will often cause confusion to other drivers who do not immediately comprehend your intent in stopping when the road is clear and this is particularly the case for drivers behind you who do not expect you to stop! It takes a few seconds for them to guess that you intend to yield the right of way to someone else, but the question is, to whom?

The driver at the stop sign or the oncoming driver wishing to make a turn? Seeing the stopped driver furiously waving their hands doesn’t make it any clearer and the result is traffic back-ups and frustrated drivers who cannot see why everyone is stopped and no one is going.

Often, all three drivers decide that they will go at the same time and the result is many near misses.

Interestingly, if an accident results, it is unlikely that the person most responsible for it will be liable since they have no legal right to direct traffic in the first place and other drivers should never take directions from them.

Might I suggest that each driver be responsible for driving their own vehicle safely and that they encourage other drivers to do likewise.

When I learned to drive many years ago one rule of the road was: “If you have the right of way, and it is safe to do so, use it!” and I see no reason why that isn’t still good advice today.

giving advice to someone with a problem that you often don't realize you are meddling.

It a friend's mother is diagnosed with Alzheimer's, you might want, sympathetically, to launch into a long description of your own parent's similar affliction and the agony of placing her in a care facility.

And if the friend elects to hire day caretakers in the mother's own home instead of an institution, you might express your sense of the foolishness of the idea.

But the friend has decided that her mother would fare better at home and at lower cost than moving immediately into a nursing home.

You can't tell your friend that she is in denial, or that she must face the inevitable.

Adults weight their decision and act accordingly.

They decide what is best for them, and if their decisions don't jive with your views, stop being so critical.

They face their own consequences, you don't, so mind your own business and keep it to yourself.

You choice of action depends on the thickness of your skin and skull, and on what you think you will gain.

Success depends partly on your deftness of tongue and partly on knowing the caliber of the opposition.

Just one caveat though: if you stick your nose into someone else's affairs, you might end up with a nosebleed.

Occasionally, I toy with the idea of doing the same thing to the dining room chair so I can enjoy this surprised expression when he seats himself for dinner.

I hurriedly wiped things down and breathed a sigh of relief as the long desired objective was finally achieved. But alas, 20 minutes had passed and Mother Nature was taking a break.

My grandmother, God rest her soul, had five children. I think it is no coincidence that she also suffered from kidney failure.

Even though she spent the last six years of her life commuting to the dialysis center three days a week for four hours a day, it could never have amounted to the bathroom time she missed while raising her little brood.

I hope God has rewarded her with an eternity of quiet lavatory time and a resplendent throne of gold.

Grandfather's photography inspires a second generation

Many people take photographs as a way to record their lives, something Kathy Hunter learned from her grandfather.

"My grandfather was a photo enthusiast from the time he was in his teens until he died," she said. "He cataloged his life through taking pictures. I remember having a constant and never ending fascination looking through his photo albums, one after another as they spelled out his life."

Today, Hunter is walking in the steps of her grandfather as she pursues photography full time. Hunter is the April artist of the month at Gallery 104 in La Grange.

The self-taught photographer, who lives in Sellersburg, Ind., has a Bachelor's Degree in Fine Arts with a major in Ceramics from the Louisville School of Art, which merged with the University of Louisville in the 1980s.

But she always came back to photography and is rarely without a camera in her hand.

She said she became addicted to photography starting with her first Kodak Instamatic. From there, she inherited a 35mm from her grandfather and now shoots with Canon digital cameras.

After a 26-year career in retail, she has been working in photography full-time for three years, opening her own business in 2007.

She has exhibited at many art shows in the area including the Arts Association of Oldham County's annual Arts on the Green and juried into Gallery 104 in 2011.

The digital age became a huge inspiration for Hunter, propelling her deeper into photography.

"Processing images via the computer appealed to me and sparked my interest in crafting art from my photographs plus gave me an affordable way to process color," she said. "At times I am inspired to re-interpret an image and with different types of computer software, create a new image from the original. The results are often surprising and more personal to me, similar to a painter interpreting his or her subject matter in a familiar and personal style."

Over the years, her subject matter has evolved from people and landscapes to her most current passion, equine photography.

Although she still photographs nature, wildlife, events and portraits, she has become enamored with horses and loves concentrating on them as subject matter.

Hunter's photography will be featured at Gallery 104 in La Grange during the month of April.

Gallery 104 is owned and operated by the Arts Association of Oldham County and is located at 104 E. Main Street in La Grange.

For information call 222-3822 or visit Gallery104.org.

COLUMN

"There! How was that?"

A couple of F-15 fighter jets escorted a C-130 Hercules transport jet while the fighter pilots chatted with the pilot of the transport to pass the time.

They talked about the relative merits of their aircraft. The fighter pilots contended their airplanes are better because of their superior speed, maneuverability and weaponry and pointed out the Hercules' deficiencies in these areas.

After a while, the C-130 pilot said, "Oh yeah? Well, I can do a few things in this old girl that you'd only dream about."

Naturally, the fighter pilots challenged him to demonstrate. "Just watch," the C-130 pilot retorted. The fighter pilots watched, but all they saw was the C-130 continuing to fly straight and level.

After several minutes the Hercules pilot came back on the air. "There! How was that?" he asked.

The fighter pilots replied, "What are you talking about? What did you do?" The Hercules pilot replied, "Well, I got up, stretched my legs, and got a cup of coffee."

AL EARLEY
From a Religious Point of View

Similarly, many of us don't really recognize what God has done in the Easter story.

We've got hi-tech toys with great graphics and things that generations before us could not even dream of.

And the simple 2000-year-old Easter story comes along and it feels like a great old C-130 Hercules.

We figure, it's old, so is there any reason to take it seriously? We can search the internet and find thousands of skeptical web sites filled with difficult questions and cynical conclusions of doubt.

We are so sophisticated.

We have all the knowledge of the world at our fingertips.

What is in our ancient Bibles that we need today?

As Easter comes upon us again, Jesus' resurrection from the dead raises some tough questions.

Why didn't the authorities produce a body and stop the proclamation that Jesus was risen from the dead?

If it was a lie, why were all the disciples willing to die for their faith, and most did, except John, who was exiled to the island of Patmos to die mining ore for the empire? (He didn't die there, and we don't know how he miraculously escaped, but he did in the book of Revelation).

Why did the church grow so quickly, with so many converts that were also willing to die for their new found faith? The resurrection of Christ comes to us, sneaking into our consciousness, and somehow we hear a voice in that Easter story whispering, "There! How was that?"

I heard a story about a family that tragically lost three of their four children within two weeks to a deadly, virulent disease. One child was left – a 4-year-old boy. The family buried the third child just two weeks before Easter.

On Easter morning the parents and the remaining child went to church. The mother taught her Sunday School class about the resurrection of Jesus, and the father read the Easter story as he led the opening Sunday School devotion.

People who knew about their great loss wondered how they could do it. One family of the church was in the car on their way home after church when their 16-year-old son asked his father, "That couple must believe everything about the Easter story, don't they?"

"Of course they believe it," said the father, "all Christians do."

The teenager then said, "But not like they do."

We never know when we are going to face the greatest trials and temptations of our lives. When we do, it will make all the difference in the world how we survive those tests of life if we have a strong faith to fall back on. Life can be very hard, very unfair, very cynical, and very skeptical.

If you were to encounter a tragedy like the family above, would your faith be strong enough to survive?

Is your faith in the Easter miracle weakened by the cynicism and skepticism of the world?

It is easy to find cynical answers of doubt in today's world.

Where do you go to find Biblical answers that will inspire faith, the kind of faith that will bring resurrection out of the deepest ash heaps of death life can throw at us?

Three horses with local ties Derby hopeful

BY JASON STAMM
SPORTS EDITOR, THE OLDHAM ERA

Last year, a locally trained horse finished fourth in the Kentucky Derby then won Preakness Stakes.

Now, three horses with Oldham County connections are looking to duplicate that success.

Dullahan and Cozzetti, both trained by Dale Romans at his thoroughbred training facility off Liberty Lane in Goshen, will run in Derby preparation races this month with hopes of qualifying for the Derby May 5.

Another horse with an Oldham County tie, Secret Circle, is also in contention for the Derby, which selects the top horses by race earnings.

Dullahan will compete April 14 in the $750,000 Bluegrass Stakes at Keeneland race course in Lexington. He finished second March 11 at the Palm Beach Stakes in Florida.

Romans said he's impressed by what he's seen in workouts.

"He's very athletic and very talented," Romans said. "He's not quite as strong and big as Shackleford, but I think his ability to go a mile and a quarter is a little stronger than Shackleford. He's really peaking at the right time."

The half-brother of 2009 Derby winner Mine That Bird, Dullahan caught the attention of his owner, Jerry Crawford, at the 2010 yearling sale at Keeneland.

Crawford said he likes the colt's bloodlines and bought him for $250,000.

But Dullahan couldn't gain weight until recently. Now, Crawford believes the horse is in good condition for the Derby.

"I liked his athleticism, but he was like a gangly teenage athlete," Crawford said. "Today, he looks and acts like a man. He's added so much strength and power."

Romans said he likes the improvements his other hopeful, Cozzetti, has made in workouts.

Cozzetti will compete April 14 in the $1 million Arkansas Derby at Oaklawn Park in Hot Springs, Ark.

The colt finished third March 10 in the Tampa Bay Derby in Florida.

"He has to step up and run big, but Cozzetti is also big and talented and just a strong horse," Romans said. "He wants to run all day, so I think he'll be perfect for the Derby distance."

Other Oldham County trainers, such as Greg Foley and Ian Wilkes in Goshen, said none of the horses they train are in contention. Neck 'N Neck, trained by Wilkes, finished fifth Saturday in the Florida Derby.

But one horse bred in Oldham County has a strong possibility of qualifying for the Derby. Secret South Oldham High School senior Elizabeth Fowler hones her water ski craft at Taylorsville Lake and Stillwater Lake in Eminence.

Gliding over the water

South water skier among the best in the country

BY JASON STAMM
SPORTS EDITOR, THE OLDHAM ERA

She sits down in the calm water, clutching a rope. Suddenly, the boat takes off, lifting South Oldham High School senior Elizabeth Fowler out of the water on a slalom ski.

She curves around a series of buoys with ease and grace. A competitive water skier, Fowler is one of the best in the country. She's also an instructor and this fall, she'll be swimming with elite skiers at the University of Alabama.

Water skiing consists of three events: slalom, trick and jump. Slalom is a timed event using one narrow ski to navigate around a series of buoys.

Trick skiing uses a shorter, wider and flatter ski for skiers to perform jumps and twists using the wake created from the boat.

In jump skiing, a skier uses two longer and wider skies to propel off a 5 or 6-foot wooden ramp.

In each event, the boat travels up to 34 mph. Though most skiers perform in one of the events, Fowler has honed all three, using impeccable skills to move her skis with precision.

"I'm pretty strong and that helps," Fowler said. "Where you look is also important, because it slows everything down."

After practicing at Taylorsville Lake, Fowler first competed in Paducah in 2002 after being coached by her father, John Fowler and water skier Gary Sandberg.

Sandberg is also a competitive water-skier and said he saw natural ability in Elizabeth.

"She impressed me the very first time out, how quickly she was able to follow direction and execute what I was trying to get her to do," Sandberg said. "She's strong, has the hunger, she's smart and very athletic."

Fowler competes in at least six tournaments each summer, including at Paducah, Elizabethtown, Walton and Stillwater

Oldham little leagues preparing for season openers and expectations

BY JASON STAMM
SPORTS EDITOR, THE OLDHAM ERA

As if anyone needed a reminder, players, coaches and parents see what can be accomplished each time they enter Walsh Park in La Grange.

A board hangs on the concession stand at the park, commemorating the North Oldham Little League's Great Lakes regional championship and Little League World Series appearance in August.

It's also an indication of what both NOLL and the South Oldham Little League strive for this year.

Both leagues are making final preparations for their upcoming opening days while their teams are practicing as well. NOLL begins its season April 16 and will host a grand opening and parade April 21, while SOLL's season gets underway April 19.

JASON STAMM/THE OLDHAM ERA

Dave Tate, assistant coach for the Red Sox of the South Oldham League, instructs players during practice March 29.

This season, NOLL president Brad Clifford said the goal is to make a return trip to the Little League World Series and he believes it can be achieved.

"Once is great, but if you can do it once, you can do it again," Clifford said. "It's not what they have done, it's what we can do to get there."

Angler starts next chapter

Former jockey, professional fisherman finds new ventures in Oldham

BY JASON STAMM
SPORTS EDITOR, THE OLDHAM ERA

On a dreary Saturday morning, he plops in a cream-colored leather recliner he'd moved along with a couch and a love seat the day before.

Sitting in the back of his Pewee Valley consignment furniture store, Clover Cottage, Kevin Wirth smiles while recollecting his past sporting ventures.

For more than 30 years, Wirth has been in the limelight, first as a Kentucky Derby jockey, then as a professional fisherman in which he earned over $1 million before he retired in February. He still has a hand in horse racing, but the rush isn't the same.

During his 25-year professional fishing career, whether he scoured the Mississippi River delta, trolled a bass boat across Lake Michigan or sifted through the swamps of central Florida, Wirth steadily finished among the top anglers on the BASS tour.

After qualifying for 11 straight Bassmaster Classics — the World Series of fishing — Wirth retired.

Circle, trained by Bob Baffert, was foaled at Longfield Farm in Goshen.
Longfield Farm General Manager Allan Lavin said the colt's rise came as a surprise after he failed to sell at Keeneland's 2010 yearling sale, but sold for $160,000 at the April 2011 yearling sale in Ocala, Fla.
Secret Circle, sired by Eddington at Longfield, won the Rebel Stakes March 17 at Oaklawn Park.
"Eddington had been in a bit of a lull and hadn't produced a horse of Secret Circle's quality in a while," Lavin said. "Secret Circle is just a neat horse who's a real athlete and talented. I guess anything's possible at a horse sale."

Secret Circle has won five of the six races he's competed in, which also included the Southwest Stakes Feb. 20 at Oaklawn.
He'll be racing against Cozzetti at the Arkansas Derby. If one horse loses, it could still be in Kentucky Derby contention.
With dozens of Derby preparation races still to be run, anything's possible in the month before the run for the roses the first weekend in May.

Lake in Eminence.

In August, Fowler competed in the American Water Ski Association's national championships in Wilmington, Ill.

Before the championships, Fowler also used her teaching skills.

She spent the previous three months coaching all three events at Coble Water Ski and Wakeboard Camp in Lillington, NC.

The camp's head instructor, April Coble-Eller, is a 26-time national champion and former member of the U.S. water ski team.

"Her passion and focus have allowed her to be a good water skier, but also a good teacher," Coble-Eller said. "Even some of the best water skiers in the world are not good teachers. She's very caring, especially with the younger kids."

Fowler said she hopes to become a professional water skier and compete in the Olympics if water skiing becomes an Olympic sport.

But she also wants to be an instructor, in part because of her time at the camp.

"Some skiers are stubborn and just do their own thing," Fowler said. "If a coach takes the time to tell me how to improve, I'm gonna do my best to do that."

Fowler will continue her skiing career this fall at the University of Alabama on a full scholarship as a member of the school's ski team.

This summer, she plans on helping her brothers, Garnet, 12, Wyatt, 6 and Troy, 5, water ski.

John Fowler said he's enjoyed watching his three sons follow the path Elizabeth set. But he takes the most pride in what his daughter has accomplished.

"She just truly has fun behind the boat," he said. "She's consistent, strong and extremely graceful. When Elizabeth skis, people will watch and there's always someone who says, 'Man, I wish I could do that like she does.'"

Angler

Unlike many casual fishermen, for Wirth, fishing was never about relaxing in a boat on the water. That mindset helped Wirth finish in the top 10 of four tournaments 30 times.

"I don't really love fishing," Wirth said. "I love catching. I'm not there because it's a nice day. I'm out there to whack 'em."

Including this year's Bassmaster Classic in Shreveport, La., Wirth, 49, held a high place among the best in his sport.

"He's a competitor and he just has that instinct," professional fisherman and friend Jeff Kriet said. "He was just so consistent every time. I was just so surprised when he decided not to fish anymore. He was really in his prime. If there were fish there, he'd catch 'em."

Wirth has always been asked frequently, but he doesn't have a favorite lure to use.

He said that he enjoys jerk baiting, but would change his lure based on location and water depth.

"Using bait is like working on a car," Wirth said. "We're not gonna take a hammer. Bait is tools. There's different ones for different situations."

Before growing up on the water, Wirth grew up on the farm.

The son of a horse trainer, Wirth raised horses on his father's farm then became a jockey. He rode Mythical Ruler in the 1981 Kentucky Derby, finishing 17th as a 19-year old.

"He's still out there running," Wirth said of Mythical Ruler. "He was such a great miler. Horse racing just gets in your blood."

But Wirth was forced to quit as a jockey when he grew too big for jockey standards. Wirth went from 4-feet-9 and 90 pounds at 16 years old to 5-feet-10 at 20.

In 1982, Wirth competed in his first tournament, at the Barren Reservoir, on a whim.

In his first Bassmaster tournament, the 1985 Chattanooga Invitational, Wirth finished without earning a penny. It didn't lessen his determination.

"He wasn't a big guy, but he could just do anything," said his brother-in-law, thoroughbred trainer Greg Foley. "He was a good athlete for his size and there wasn't a whole lot he couldn't do."

Now, in the early years of retirement, Wirth owns Clover Cottage in Pewee Valley and co-owns Arata Sushi in Prospect. He also watches his son Clayton, an eighth grader at East Oldham Middle School, and Shelby, a second grader at Crestwood Elementary play sports.

JASON STAMM/THE OLDHAM ERA

Wirth now hauls furniture and operates Clover Cottage in Pewee Valley.

"He tried to find something else to fill that competitiveness after riding," his wife Lisa said. "I think he might still tinker with fishing, but he's put his family first and not gamble to make a check."

Wirth also learned a few skills working with horses as a kid that still keeps him involved in the sports he loves.

He's an equine dentist for some of the top thoroughbreds in the country. Last year, he gave checkups to 2011 Preakness winner Shackleford and nine horses who competed in the Breeder's Cup Classic.

"When I was riding, it was all about the adrenaline rush and competitiveness," Wirth said. "Now, I just enjoy being around the horses."

But Wirth can't get too comfortable talking about horses.

He receives a phone call while sitting in the recliner. He has to drive to Prospect to look at furniture he might purchase.

He's still busy, but in a different way.

Clifford said the league has made a few improvements to its facilities. NOLL has replaced four dugout roofs, painted its dugouts and score-boxes and installed new netting, carpeting and chain-link fence on two batting cages.

SOLL finished preparations of its largest field nearly a month ago for the Greater Oldham County Baseball league, a league which began March 10 and consists of teams from NOLL, SOLL, Shelby County and St. Mathews.

The new league has made an extended season for Jamie Smith, head of concessions at Peggy Baker Park in Crestwood.

Smith said she spends at least five nights per week at the park during the season.

She and her husband, Jim Smith, began preparations in late February. Jim is the head of maintenance at the park.

"I just live out here," Jamie Smith said. "But we love baseball. I'd rather kids be here than out on the street."

Players are also preparing for the season.

North Oldham Little League: Games begin April 16 for major, minor and rookie leagues in baseball, rookie and minor leagues in softball and coach-pitch and tee-ball. Major league softball starts April 17, the challenger league begins April 21 and the senior league softball league begins April 22.

The league is hosting a pancake breakfast at 7 a.m. April 22 at the La Grange Fire Department for its grand opening. A parade honoring last year's all-star teams will begin at 8:45 a.m. at the Oldham County Historical Society and end at Walsh Park.

South Oldham Little League: The league is hosting its opening day ceremonies at 7:15 p.m. April 19 and will include Louisville Bats mascot Buddy Bat throwing the first pitch of the North Oldham High School vs. South Oldham High School freshman game. The SOLL and NOLL have also combined teams to form one softball league this year. The games will be held at both Peggy Baker Park and Walsh Park.

Like Kennedy, NOLL vice president Brent Hackworth said he also tries to ensure players have fun.

Hackworth, also a coach in the Major League division, said he also wants to match what the NOLL's Major League all-star team accomplished.

"When you're looking at that board, it certainly gets your attention," Hackworth said. "Kids notice it and those kids who have been on all-star teams the previous few years are excited and hoping they do well enough to make the all-star team this year and meet the expectations."

Giving back to the communities we serve...

In addition to compassionately serving families during their time of need, Heady-Radcliffe demonstrates an ongoing commitment to the community. We proudly offer a number of free outreach programs designed to honor those who serve, keep families safe, fight for a cause and comfort those who grieve.

The Heady-Radcliffe L.I.F.T (Living Information For Today) Program helps widows and widowers adjust to the loss of their spouses by giving members the opportunity to socialize with others who may share similar feelings and experiences. The meetings are held on the 2nd Tuesday of each month and include luncheons, day trips, picnics and other outings as well as educational speakers and workshops, etc. There are no membership fees or dues. Members only pay for lunch and, if any, personal expenses.

To inquire about the program, please call the funeral home at 222-9497.

Serving the community since 1936,
Heady-Radcliffe remains the right choice for your family.
